Call for Papers (First Circular)

Message from the Organizing Committee
We are delighted to announce that the International Symposium on Earth Science and Technology 2008 will be held from 1-2 December 2008 in Nishijin Plaza, Fukuoka, Japan. This is an international symposium, presenting the most current sciences and technologies from around the world, with a special focus on scientific, technical and environmental issues that challenge the earth resources developments. Topics of major interest are listed below.

1) Economic Geology & Geological Engineering
2) Geophysics & Monitoring System
3) Underground Water Resources
4) Environmental Geology & Rehabilitation
5) Development & Production of Mineral Resources
6) Production of Energy Resources
7) Numerical Simulation of Resources & Environment
8) Mechanized, Automation & Intelligent Mining
9) Geomechanics & Rock Mechanics
10) Mineral Processing, Waste Management & Recycling
11) GIS Applications
12) Sustainability of Resources & Environment
13) Global Environmental Protection Technology
14) International Cooperation in Education & Research

We invite you and your colleagues to submit paper proposals to be considered for the symposium. Especially young researchers are welcomed, since the best paper awards are established to encourage the young researchers contributing to the area of earth resources and environment.

The deadline for submitting abstracts is July 31, 2008. Please submit your abstract electronically to the E-mail of the symposium secretariat below.

Thank you in advance for your contribution to the success of this symposium. We sincerely look forward to seeing you in Fukuoka!
